Bipartisan Legislation to Protect Wildlife

This week, the Governor signed into law the Florida Wildlife Corridor Act, a bipartisan bill that received unanimous support in the legislature. The act, which went into effect on July 1st, aims to protect wildlife and precious land and water habitats by connecting a large section of Florida's conservation lands. These connections create a corridor that runs from the panhandle to South Florida and will allow for easy migration and genetic exchange for native animals such as the Florida Panther. The legislature also allocated an additional $300 million toward the Florida Forever conservation program specifically to protect this corridor.

This act and the money attached to it signals the state's commitment to make our wildlife, land, water, and waterways a priority. For more information on Florida Wildlife Corridor, click HERE.
